

World Arts Now.com is a division of Development Associates International Inc. DAI was founded in 1988 and provides interactive seminars, team building, educational and cultural services in a wide variety of settings. The Managing Director, Dr. Donna Goldstein, is a cross-cultural psychologist, author, producer, diversity trainer and former professor of multicultural education. Dr. Goldstein has personally trained over 100,000 people worldwide in educational, governmental, corporate and non-profit organizations and manages a consulting team of up to a dozen trainers and consultants. She has taught on the adjunct faculty of FIU, FAU, NSU, and St. Thomas University.

Dr. Goldstein and her educational and artistic associates are deeply committed to arts education and innovative ways to teach cultural competence, interpersonal skills and self esteem through the arts. She has contributed to 26 books on professional and personal development and developed teaching materials on multicultural education, diversity awareness, prejudice reduction and holocaust awareness that are now utilized by educators worldwide.

World Arts Now, as a division of Development Associates International, produces and plans high quality cultural and educational programs and entertainment for both children and adults. The one-act, one-man play "The African American Portrait Gallery: Discovering Timeless Heroes" was one of the first productions by World Arts Now. It has been seen by over 40,000 students from six states in over 100 libraries, schools, arts and community centers and universities, including the African American Research Library and Cultural Center in Fort Lauderdale. "Heroes" has been featured in both the Miami Herald and Sun Sentinel newspapers.

World Arts Now has also produced a variety of well received programs and educational shows on Caribbean and Latin Cultures for libraries, schools and agencies. We have arranged showcases with dozens of artists and entertainers from around the globe and many festivals, parties and events. "Edutainment" programs have ranged the World's cultures, including an historical reenactment of the Haitian hero Toussaint L'Overture, a "Tour of the Music of the World" with a flautist, an interactive show of Brazilian music and percussion as well as performances, storytelling and demonstrations ranging from Steel Pan and island music to exotic instruments such as the Greek Oud and the Thai Khim.

Dr. Donna, as she is known by her friends and colleagues, works closely with program and event planners to assure that their goals are met. She personally supervises the development of all World Arts Now programs and attends and critiques performances on a regular basis. All programs and performances are guaranteed to meet or exceed the client's expectations and our own high cultural and educational standards.

Visit our artists, productions, audio and video clips at www.WorldArtsNow.com
Contact us at DrDonna@WorldArtsNow.com or call 954-893-0123